What is FuturePerfect?

FuturePerfect is a progress encouraging goal tracker.

It was born of my frustration with the constant cycle of reactionary project management that I experience.

I have some serious goals for my business (and myself) and yet our highest-maintenance clients were getting the majority of my focus and energy.

That's not fair to me or to our other clients.

Eliza? A messy desk?

How does it work?

You start by telling futureperfect about your current projects and goals.

list page, entering projects

Then you start working, with either a Speed Run (for a quick time-boxed run through of all your active projects) or a regular work session (to methodically work on each project in turn).

Speed Run: to quickly touch on every project

Great for doing a quick email session before you sit down to work for the day

Speed Runs are a great way to start the morning. They are time-boxed work sessions (by default, 30 minutes) that speed you through touching base on every project. I find that I am able to focus much better knowing that I've addressed any urgent client needs and that nothing is on fire.

Regular Work Session, to dilligently work on each project in turn

This is the heart and soul of FuturePerfect- Helping you make real forward progress on every project, every day

In a regular work session, you are guided through diligently working on every project.

By default, each project is budgetted 30 minutes of time per work session. This self adjusts (up and down) based on how long you actually spend on each project.

And then you're done!

Once you've completed a project (and you will!), you just press "Done Forever".

It's a wonderful feeling!

| Pause | Skip for Now | Done for Today | Done Forever |

Pause, pauses the countdown (on the server as well as the browser)
Skip, skips the project temporarily _This feature may go away, it is destructive_
Next, marks the project as "Done for Today"
Completed, marks the project as "Done Forever"

Speed Run

Attempts to rush the user through a quick run of checking in on every project.

The tool automatically load-balances. If the user speeds through the first project, each subsequent project is alloted additional time. And vice versa, if they spend too much time.
